SPEAK UP FOR LIFE

When someone says...

“The anti-abortion position is a religious belief that threatens the vital separation of church and state.”

You say...

Many nonreligious people believe that abortion kills children and that it is wrong. Morality must not be rejected just because it is supported by religion. Every law establishes a certain moral position as a social norm. Most of our laws are rooted in the Judeo-Christian religion. Should we abolish laws against stealing because the Bible says “You shall not steal”? Neither the words “separation of church and state” nor the concept as we now know it are found in the Constitution. The first amendment was devised to protect religious liberty, to assure freedom for religion, not freedom from religion, and not to banish religion’s influence on society. In fact, religion’s waning influence on our society directly accounts for the moral deterioration threatening our future.

Excerpted from:
“Pro Life Answers to Pro Choice Arguments” (#23), by Randy Alcorn
Multnomah Press, 1992